

CUTC Bylaws

Revised June 16, 2021

Article I - Name

The organization shall be known as the Council of University Transportation Centers (CUTC). CUTC is a not-for-profit corporation chartered in the State of Tennessee, June 4, 1982, (amended January 11, 2015).

Article II- Purpose

CUTC desires to strengthen the role of transportation research and its role in education. CUTC recognizes that there are different levels of commitment to transportation research and education within the university and college environment. The type of organizational structure developed by a university to carry out its role in transportation research and education often suggests its level of commitment.

There are many issues that are unique to specific organizational structures within a university. Formally structured transportation research, education and technology transfer centers address issues relative to management, fiscal operations, physical plants, personnel, as well as others, which are often at a different level of concern from the issues experienced by individual faculty members. The ability to adequately address these issues within a university has a direct impact upon research, education and technology transfer activities conducted by a given center.

CUTC also recognizes that there are units of varying size and number within a university that may participate in transportation research and education; for example, academic departments organized by discipline. CUTC supports all transportation research and education by units other than university recognized centers. While CUTC fully recognizes that the missions of various units conducting transportation research and education in universities may be similar to that of formal centers, centers that engage in research, education, and technology transfer have unique roles and interests.

Therefore, in order to accommodate the diversity of interests in transportation research and education at universities and at the same time promote the role of formal centers, CUTC maintains two divisions of membership (i.e., Members and Provisional Members, as defined in Article III, Membership) that represent in general the different levels of commitment to transportation programs by a university.

CUTC is organized to exchange information on the various issues confronting the centers in their respective universities and to provide a resource to universities aspiring to increase their role in transportation research, education and technology transfer. CUTC desires to develop positions on policies or other activities that would have an impact upon the role of transportation centers in universities.

The basic purposes of CUTC are to:

- improve and enhance research and education in transportation and related areas,
- provide a means by which problems common to transportation centers in universities can be discussed and clarified,
- provide a mechanism for the joint consideration of problems of research methodology and the availability of data,
- provide a medium through which transportation research and education may be enhanced and where information and opinions on problems emerging in transportation can be expeditiously exchanged,
- provide a forum for better integrating and coordinating research with academic education, training and technology transfer, and
- provide for meetings of CUTC for the discussion of those problems typically faced by the membership, both with respect to the subject matters of research, education and technology transfer and with respect to problems of administration
- develop strategies and organize activities to help promote interest in the field of transportation research to help assure a workforce for the future, and
- recognize the outstanding work through awards (some financial) of the general membership of CUTC and award its students, faculty, administrators and others within the membership

Current annual dues are US $800 per year per any organized center, institute, division, unit, or specifically identifiable organization devoted to transportation research, education and technology transfer. Any increase in the amount of dues must be approved by simple majority at a semi-annual meeting of the Division of Members. The increase will not be effective until July 1 of the upcoming year in which the Division of Membership approved.

Each member shall pay annual dues as established by CUTC. The amount shall become due and payable on July 1 of each year. Failure of any member to pay dues within four months of the date of invoice will result in that member's membership privileges being suspended, such suspension to continue until payment is made. Failure to pay annual dues by Nov. 1 of the invoice year will result in the university not being able to vote or be eligible for CUTC awards to the Division of Members. If after one year, no payment is made to CUTC, all privileges and benefits are revoked. The organization will have to re-apply for membership to CUTC for consideration of membership (Article III).
